

AGRICULTURAL ACT DETAILS ARE EXPLAINED

SPECIAL MEETING FOR FARMERS AND COUNTY AGENTS
FRIDAY NIGHT

BENEFIT WHEAT RAISERS

State Administrator For Agricultural Act And Other Experts In Interesting Discussion.

Details of why and how the agricultural adjustments act can benefit wheat growers of the nation were explained Friday night to representative committees of farmers and county agents of the western central section of Indiana in a special meeting in Greencastle. Speakers on the program included John H. Skinner of Purdue university, director of extension work and named state administrator for the agriculture act; Dr. W. E. Stout, agricultural economist of Purdue; and L. E. Huffman, assistant state county agent leader.

In addition to county agents and farmers, those attending the meeting included bankers, grain elevator operators and newspaper men from all counties in the section.

Dr. Stout, speaking first, presented a brief outline of the national and world situation with emphasis on the effect of the growing surplus on the world market. Mr. Huffman followed with a detailed explanation of how a farmer may sign a contract for reduction of wheat acreage and the benefits that will accrue to him from the contract. Dean Skinner closed with a brief address in which he urged farmers to avail themselves of the benefits of the agricultural act and labeled the act an objective with a purpose for which farmers have long labored.

Mr. Huffman showed by figures how the surplus in this country has grown since the war, because European nations are producing wheat in retaliation for no more loans or the buying of goods from America. The surplus now is about 675 million bushels, with one half of it in this country. Normally the carry over surplus here is around 100 million bushels. Tariffs have also been set on European imported wheat and now it is about $1.70 per bushel in Italy, $1.62 in Germany and 85 cents in France.

The speaker explained the parity act on wheat and showed a chart which explained the relation of wheat to other commodities the farmer uses. These were on a parity base from 1909 to 1914, when the wheat price equalled 89 cents of a dollar. In 1924 it went to $1.33 but later times and now, it is far below the parity price or the equal of other commodity prices.

"The wheat control plan is part of the agricultural adjustment act which presents an honest and wholehearted effort to restore the great business of agriculture to its proper position and relations in our national life," said Dean Skinner.

"It is a measure that organized farmers long have sought and represents the combined thought of the nation's leaders to restore parity prices on agricultural products. As such it is deserving of the solid support of farm people and business men everywhere, whether or not they are wheat growers. The act is certainly deserving of a fair trial and I believe that it offers a real opportunity for farmers which we long have sought. It behooves all of us to get behind the wheat production plan and try to bring about the parity prices. Every farmer owes it to himself and to others to understand thoroughly the details of the plan and then decide whether he wants parity prices for his products. If he does, he certainly will take advantage of this plan and what it offers and also encourage his neighbors to join with him in putting it into effect."

Huffman, in his explanation of the operation of the act, went back to the actual beginning of its operation on July 9 when the government began collecting a processing tax of 30 cents per bushel on all wheat going into domestic consumption. Of this 30 cents, one or two will be kept for payment of administration of the act nationally and for creating a fund to encourage export. Of the remaining 28 or 29 cents, 20 cents per bushel will be paid to farmers on 54 per cent of his 1933 crop, representing the amount going to domestic consumption, providing he signs a contract for reduction of his average wheat acreage of the past five years (Continued on Page Two)

CRISS RITCHESON IS CHARGED WITH ASSAULT, TRESPASS,
IN AFFIDAVITS

Criss Ritcheson, of Groveland, is charged with trespass and provoke in affidavits filed in circuit court late Friday by Leona McVay, also of Groveland.

According to one affidavit Ritcheson is alleged to have trespassed on land occupied by Leona McVay July 27 and to have refused to leave when ordered to do so. In the second affidavit Ritcheson is said to have provoked Leona McVay July 27 to commit an assault and battery upon him.

The prosecuting witness is said to have told county officers that Ritcheson deposited a bundle of switches and a note on the McVay porch, the act being witnessed by Leona McVay and two children. The note was said to have been almost undecipherable. Prosecutor Crawley stated Saturday afternoon that the affidavits against Ritcheson were transferred from circuit court to the court of Justice of the Peace Robert H. Newgent.

Ritcheson was arraigned before Justice Newgent Saturday but pleaded not guilty and was released on bond pending trial Wednesday.

May Do Forest Work In County

WORKERS IN CLAY COUNTY
CAMP AUTHORIZED TO OPERATE IN PUTNAM

Martin R. Goshorn, in charge of the government conservation camp in Clay county, has been authorized by Ralph F. Wilcox, state forester, to carry on gully control and soil erosion work from the Clay county camp, regardless of county lines, according to a letter received Saturday by E. W. Baker, Putnam agricultural agent.

Workers in the conservation camp are to be governed by an approximate working distance from the camp site, the state forester stated. With this in mind the workers can carry on operations in the southwest portion of Putnam county, the southern portion of Parke and the northern portion of Vigo county, Wilcox said.

Goshorn has been authorized to make contact with county agents of the three outside counties mentioned and prepare working plans carefully. This will probably result in gully control and soil erosion work being done in the near future in Washington township of this county.

BURNS FATAL TO MARSHALL BECK, AN EX-RESIDENT

FORMER CEMENT PLANT OFFICIAL DIES FRIDAY AT BUFFALO, N. Y.

WAS SON OF ADAM BECK

Believed To Have Fallen Asleep In Bed While Reading, Cigarette Firing Bed Covers.

Word was received here Saturday morning of the tragic death in Buffalo, New York, of Marshall Beck, son of Adam L. Beck, president of the Great Lakes Portland Cement Company and a former resident of Greencastle. Mr. Beck died from severe burns received in his home some time Thursday night. Press dispatches said the condition of the Beck apartment indicated Beck had fallen asleep while reading in bed and that a cigarette set fire to the bed covers.

Mr. Beck was secretary of the Great Lakes Cement Company which the Becks erected following the sale of the cement plant here to the International Cement Corporation a few years ago. His father, Adam L. Beck was head of the local company from the time it was constructed until it was sold and the son, Marshall, was secretary, and was actively associated with the operation of the plant here.

Mr. Beck is survived by the widow, two children, a son Marshall Adam and a daughter and his parents.

The family made many warm friends while they resided in Greencastle and all learned with deep regret on Saturday of the tragic death of Mr. Beck.

TEN POINTED REASONS GIVEN FOR HASTE ON STATE RADIO

Al Feeney, director of the state department of public safety, today endorsed the campaign of the State Police Radio Committee to raise $100,000 by popular subscription for equipment of a state police radio system by setting forth ten reasons why all haste should be made in setting up a unified Indiana defense against organized criminal gangs.

The points are:
1. Organized crime alarmingly on the increase with robbers, kidnapers and desperadoes employing all modern inventions for speed of action and successful execution of their plots.

2. Indiana is paying millions yearly for support of a standing army of peace officers which has no unity and antiquated ammunition with which to fight.

3. Before processes of legislation, appropriations and other means can provide a radio-knit unit of Hoosier police efforts, additional millions of dollars in loot will be collected by the criminals and many persons murdered.

4. Economies in police administration demand that greater effectiveness be procured for the dollar of taxpayers' money spent, and at once—police radio communications offering the only present answer.

5. Police boundaries remain confined to city limits, but criminal depredations ravage the countryside, racing through one police jurisdiction after another.

6. Citizens, business men, industrialists, bankers, filling station operators and all have an obligation to join in the war against Public Enemies.

7. Indiana's force of 73 state police would be linked with force of 3,500 other peace officers for instantaneous, effective duty.

8. A state-wide campaign for blockading highways could be mapped with radio aid.

9. Radio has multiplied police patrol systems by three times.

10. Radio is cheap insurance against the bandit, the burglar, the kidnaper and all the other enemies, who make orderly society their prey.

Feeney said it was unbelievable, yet nevertheless a fact, that citizens in some communities of Indiana must live under the constant watch of bodyguards, ever fearful of their lives and the safety of their wives and children.

PENNSYLVANIA TROOPS CALLED TO END STRIKE

GOV. PINCHOT PROCLAIMS MAR-
TIAL LAW IN FAYETTE
COUNTY MINE AREA

MILFORD, Pa., July 29 (UP)—Governor Pinchot today ordered the Pennsylvania National Guard into Fayette county to preserve order in the bituminous strike districts.

The governor announced martial law would be declared in Fayette county as soon as detachments of guardsmen arrived from their training camp at Mt. Gretna. A train load of troops was ordered out from Mt. Gretna at 7:30 a. m. The detachment consisted of one battalion of infantrymen.

The governor's decision to take over Fayette county followed refusal on the part of Sheriff Harry E. Hackney to withdraw his deputy sheriffs and allow state police to patrol the strike districts where numerous disorders have been reported.

The proclamations declaring martial law had been printed and would be posted in the county immediately, it was said.

"Having learned from press sources that Sheriff Hackney had wired me refusing my offer to take charge in the strike area and thus prevent violence, I called him up this morning and laid this definite proposition before him," Pinchot told the United Press.

"If he would make way for the state police by taking out his deputies whose handling of the strike has already led to so much violence, I would send the police in at once in sufficient force to maintain order. If he would not, I would send in the National Guard."

"The sheriff refused to withdraw his deputies and I have ordered out the Guard."

Fry Threatens Drastic Action

STATE BEER DIRECTOR ISSUES
ULTIMATUM TO NORTHERN INDIANA DEALERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 29 (UP)—Use of state police or the national guard if local officials fail to enforce bottle provisions of the state beer control act was threatened today by Paul P. Fry, state excise director.

His announcement accepted the challenge of Lake and Allen county dealers who had been selling draught beer openly in direct violation of the state law.

"As soon as I receive evidence of any dealer selling draught beer, I shall revoke his license," Fry said.

"It then will be up to local officials to enforce the law. If they fail to do this we will obtain the assistance of the state police or national guard."

INDIANAPOLIS, July 29 (UP)—Lake and Allen county dealers today ignored threats of Paul P. Fry, state excise director, to enlist the aid of state police or national guardsmen in preventing the sale of draught beer.

The revolt against bottled beer in Lake county broke out into the open today when prominent wholesalers announced plans to start distribution of keg beer this afternoon.

PRESIDENT TO RELAX AT KRUM ELBOW

MR. ROOSEVELT RETURNS TO HOME ESTATE IN NEW YORK FOR MONTH

MAY HOLD CONFERENCES

Friends Believe President Will Discuss Domestic And International Problems During Vacation

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 29 (UP)—Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and a staff of White House attaches President Roosevelt was on his way to Krum Elbow, on the banks of the Hudson today where he will spend a vacation away from Washington but not from official business.

Mr. Roosevelt will remain away from the White House a month with the exception of a brief interlude when he is expected to return to Washington to speed the administration of the National Recovery Act. Although the president planned to take things easy at Krum Elbow, friends believed a number of important conferences on both domestic and international problems would be held at the rambling stone house or at the "cottage," a rural retreat tucked away deep in the woods of the estate.

Mr. Roosevelt and his party boarded the train fifteen minutes before its scheduled departure. With Mrs. Roosevelt, he smilingly posed for pictures on the rear platform. Several hundred persons gathered at the station to bid them goodbye.

Mrs. Roosevelt went aboard the train leading on a leash the frisky Meggie, her pet Scotch terrier.

Others in the official party included Miss Marguerite LeHand, the president's personal secretary; Col. Marvin H. McIntyre, White House secretary; Mrs. Malvina Thompson, Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary, and a group of workers from the White House executive staff.

By reason of his appointment Saturday Jones will serve four years and 15 days instead of the regular four year term.

Start Flight To Baffin Land

LINDBERGH TAKE OFF ON TRIP OVER TERRITORY BE-YOND ARCTIC CIRCLE

COPENHAGEN, July 29 (UP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, braving a flight over territory left usually to Eskimos and Arctic explorers, took off in their plane from Holstenborg, Greenland, yesterday, for a visit to Baffin Land, according to word received here today.

They were expected to return at once.

The flight took the Lindberghs westward across the 200 miles of Davis strait that joins the Atlantic with Baffin bay, just north of the Arctic circle, above Hudson strait and Hudson bay.

They had been flying along the Greenland coast for some days, looking over the territory with a view to a Northern Atlantic air route.

On Thursday the Lindberghs flew over the Greenland ice area, a great cap rising to from 8,000 to 10,000 feet that covers the entire interior of the great island. They reported when they returned to Holstenborg that they found a good landing place on a fjord in the interior.

The Greenland government reported from Godthaab today that the steamship Jelling, depot ship for the Lindberghs' survey, arrived at Holstenborg Thursday evening. Apparently Lindbergh decided on the Baffin Land flight as soon as the ship arrived.

The Jelling's master, Captain Dam, reported that Lindbergh did not expect to fly to Copenhagen. Reports that the Lindberghs would fly to Scandinavia were published yesterday. Previously Lindbergh had indicated he thought the season too late to continue his flight to the European continent.

Baffin Land, a barren tract of 236,000 miles, lies north of Canada and is one of the Dominions Arctic islands. It rises on the east to 5,000 to 6,000 feet, is low inland, and on the west has an elevation of 3,000 feet. Part of it is permanently ice covered. In the rest vegetation grows luxuriantly in summer time and the temperature sometimes reaches 60 degrees.

There are Royal Canadian Mounted police posts at three points, Pangnirtung fjord, Ponds inlet and Lake Harbor. A government ship visits them once each year.

Road 36 Detour Is Cut 17 Miles

DANVILLE - BAINBRIDGE DE-TOUR STRETCH REDUCED TO FOUR MILES

Reduction of the long-standing twenty-five-mile detour on United States Road 36 between Danville and Bainbridge to eight miles will be good news to motorists using this highway according to a bulletin issued by the state highway commission.

The entire stretch will be open for traffic within a month, according to present plans. The detour now extends from Danville to a point eight miles west.

Opening of three miles of pavement on the new location of Roads 43 and 67, just north of Spencer, has done away with a detour of ten miles on the latter road.

The number of roads closed because of summer oiling has been reduced considerably.

N. R. A. CODE INTERPRETED OFFICIALLY

MAY AFFECT U. S. LABOR'S RE-LATIONSHIP WITH CAPITAL

BASED ON SECTION SEVEN

Interpretations Of Six Main Clauses
Are Given As Business Men
Sign Pledge Agreements

WASHINGTON, July 29 (UP)—President Roosevelt's vast scheme for higher wages and more workers in industry was given official interpretation today that may affect the very foundation of labor's relationship with capital.

While business men by the thousands were signing up under the code of the Blue Eagle, the national recovery administration issued interpretations of six principal clauses in the president's blanket code for business.

Most significant of these decisions makes it mandatory upon members of NRA to conform to all wage provisions of the code, even though the provisions conflict with existing labor contracts.

The interpretation hinges upon section seven of the code, which requires that pay shall not be reduced even when hours are shortened, and orders that "equitable readjustments" shall be made to increase wage scales above the minimum.

"It is not the purpose of this agreement to interfere with maintenance of contracts entered into by exercise of collective bargaining," explained Donald Richberg, counsel for NRA. "It does not force the breaking of contracts."

"No contracts are affected by the agreement. If the employer can't adjust his contract, then he can't sign the agreement. The agreement neither authorizes nor requires the breaking of contracts. But the employer cannot get the Blue Eagle until and unless he complies."

He said he believed that influence of labor unions on public opinion would be powerful "persuaders."

Other interpretations issued by NRA concerned methods by which employers may settle difficulties peculiar to their business, set the date for compliance "in good faith" with the code, settled possible conflicts between the blanket code and the codes of individual industries, set forth rules about increasing prices of commodities and listed workers not subject to the code.

Such workers include professional men, employees of any governmental body, farmers, domestic servants and salesmen working on commission.

Signing of the president's "Honor Roll" was speeded up as postmen the nation over hastened delivery of 5,000,000 letters to as many employers. Mail cars returning to Washington were bulging with the pledge cards of early signers.

The only major dispute in the whole enormous campaign was revealed with the resignation of James A. Moffett, $100,000 a year vice-president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey when his employers refused to let him join an advisory committee of the NRA.

Moffett's resignation was announced by Walter C. Teagle, president of the company, who is in Washington in connection with efforts to set up a code of fair competition for the oil industry. Teagle told Moffett either to refuse appointment as an advisor to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson or hand in his resignation.

Moffett chose the latter course because he said he felt that the invitation to serve as an advisor to Gen. Johnson was "the equivalent of a command from President Roosevelt."

Two Charged With Assault

Harriett Jones and Edward Jones of Roachdale are charged with assault and battery in affidavits filed in the court of Robert Newgent, Justice of the Peace, Saturday morning, by Clem Whitaker, also of Roachdale.

Affidavits were prepared Saturday by Prosecuting Attorney Theodore Crawley after Whitaker came to Greencastle and alleged that Harriett and Edward Jones had assaulted him July 27. Warrants for the arrest of the Jones couple were issued by Justice Newgent.

MERCHANTS WARNED OF SPURIOUS NRA EMBLEMS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 29 (UP)—Indiana merchants cooperating with the national recovery administration were warned today of the appearance of spurious emblems being sold through misrepresentation.

Racketeers, taking advantage of the widespread support being given the recovery act, have visited small cities and towns in the state, selling emblems resembling those granted by the Government to firms complying with the code.

The official posters carry the blue Eagle emblem and the lettering "NRA Member," "We Do Our Part," and are obtainable only at the post office after an agreement to cooperate in the recovery program has been signed, Indiana Chamber of Commerce officials pointed out.

The spurious emblems are being sold by canvassers and proclaim the holder as a "Booster for the NRA," it was reported.

Air Fleet Poised For Atlantic Hop

ITALIAN FLIERS SCAN WEATHER REPORTS BEFORE TAKE OFF FOR IRELAND

SHOAL HARBOR, N. F., July 29 (UP)—Weather reports flashing in the Italian yacht Alice from meteorological stations on both sides of the Atlantic and from ships at sea, today caused General Italo Balbo to postpone the take off of his fleet of 24 seaplanes on the homeward flight across the Atlantic to a triumphal reception at Rome. There was a possibility of a take off late today.

The reports were increasingly pessimistic, but Balbo planned to study later ones with a view of taking off late this afternoon for Valentia, Ireland, a little over 2,000 miles away.

The planes have been refueled since Thursday, and test flights were made yesterday.

Balbo decided to leave some members of the seaplanes' crews here, to return by ship, to give more space for fuel for the long Atlantic flight. The men, rested after their American visit, are in fine shape for the adventure.

WHEAT RAISERS TO BENEFIT

by a percentage up to 20, the actual reduction to be set in the near future by the secretary of agriculture. The remainder will be paid when the actual planting has been verified next spring. The contract for the reduction in acreage remains in effect for 1934 and 1935 the contract holder to be paid each year the difference between the current market price of wheat and the price level that he must buy.

Organization for receiving benefits of the act will be started immediately by the holding of wheat growers' meeting in each of the townships in the county. Each township will elect a committee of three to have charge of the work in that unit and one of the three on the committee will be chosen as a member of the county committee, which, with the county agent, will have charge of the administration in the county.

There is nothing compulsory about farmers signing contracts. If he does desire to sign, his wheat acreage for at least the last three years must be known and from this the acreage for the five-year period will be computed. His agreement will be to reduce his acreage this fall to the figure represented by this average, minus the 20 per cent or whatever smaller percentage may be determined.

County agents are to be provided with all information relative to the operation of the act and an attempt will be made to contract every wheat grower in order that he may know the facts concerning the act before deciding whether or not he desires to contract acreage reduction.

A new Union program was announced to the effect that each section in turn will entertain the Union once quarterly, with any fitting program or in any desirable way. The other two months of the quarter being devoted to good fellowship and business meetings, and special attention given to the devotions, thus Section One's quarter would consist of July, August and September with their special program arranged for the September union meeting. Further than that the section that attends to the monthly duties of the church shall constitute the sick committee for the current month and visit all sick and bereaved and report on these calls at the union meeting each month. This is planned with the hope of bringing all sections closer to each other, and stressing more fully the value of Christian fellowship among members.

The Union is to have full charge of the morning worship service on Sunday, August 20, and the committee for that program will be Mrs. Louis Hays, chairman; Mrs. Raymond Fisher, Mrs. John Sutherland and Mrs. E. R. Bartley.

A person says he believes in a certain community enterprise. That belief, in our minds, is only verified through definite action to bring about the desired end. Likewise a man says he believes in God and Jesus Christ. This belief is evident only through works of righteousness for Him. "Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone." James 1:17. If you come to the Church on the corner of Spring Ave. and Poplar street, you will hear a gospel containing such Christian principles.

"Love" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 30. Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory" (Col. 3: 1-4).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "In Colossians (iii. 4) Paul writes: 'When Christ, who is our life, shall appear (be manifested), then shall ye also appear (be manifested) with him in glory.' (When spiritual being is understood in all its perfection, continuity, and might, then shall man be found in God's image. The absolute meaning of the apostolic words is this: Then shall man be found, in His likeness, perfect as the Father, indestructible in Life, 'hid with Christ in God,' with Truth in divine Love, where human sense hath not seen man" (p. 325).

TRUCKS

We could not but think of taxes and costs to merchants this morning, as we saw some foreign trucks unloading their freight in Greencastle. One truck comes so often that we wondered where it was from and what it paid in Greencastle to operate over our paved streets and highways.

We looked in vain for the owner's name on our tax duplicates. It was not there. We looked in vain again for the license number on our county list. It was not there. We looked in vain a third time for a city license number. Neither was that listed here. That truck probably pays not one cent in taxes in Putnam county. We only hope it does. The small sum it paid for its license went to some other city and town; the city license it paid, went to some other city or town, and the only reason it had a city license was to get by operating in Indianapolis, as few other if any, towns require city licenses.

Yet that operator collects freight charges daily from Greencastle merchants who by so doing, are slowly killing railroads and when they are dead, will the trucks pay their taxes. No, the merchant who did the killing, will pay it.

This morning we had occasion to look up one railroad's tax in the city of Greencastle alone and it totaled $4,000, this year. Altogether they pay vast sums in taxes in Putnam county. Think it over, Mr. Taxpayer. The burden may soon be shifted to our own backs.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Kennedy had youth and beauty and an intense fear of poverty. Almost the last words of her dying mother warned her against marriage to a poor man. Mary refuses the offer of a home with her married sister, Katherine. She rents a small room. While sitting in the park making plans for a job, an elderly man of distinguished appearance engages her in conversation. He is Buck Landers, well known sports promoter and race horse owner. He offers Mary a job as secretary. Mary calls on Landers relative to the position. They have dinner together and Mary is thrilled by the surrounding splendor.

CHAPTER IV

An excited little stir of pleasure kept on tingling through Mary's veins. It was all so leisurely, so unhurried and she luxuriated like a kitten in the repose of it all.

"This is so charming," she said. "It doesn't seem like New York at all."

"I hoped you might like it here," Landers answered. "The mob hasn't discovered it yet, so it's not spoiled." In his dinner coat she thought he looked dignified; yes, handsome. His commanding personality was pleasantly softened by the mellowed chivalry he exerted for her enjoyment.

She was glad now that she had worn her little peach-colored dinner dress. It was the one gown that was absolutely right for her dark golden hair and the blue of her eyes; she adored the tight stretch of it over her breast and fullness over the knees. Her eyes met Landers' and they smiled at each other. He brought her, for the first time in her life, to a palace atmosphere like this, and, more important, had made her feel that it was she who was the important one.

She was infinitely grateful toward him; he had erased the nagging ugliness of her small bedroom.

Landers, poker-faced, noted her shining eyes. . . .

She smiled at him confidently; she was elastic and strong inside; her cool pink finger tips could handle any electric currents and never even be slightly scorched.

It was this belief in her immunity that robbed Landers of any potential danger. As far as he was concerned, she had an asbestos heart.

"I like him but he could never give me any exciting thrills," she told herself. "He's too old. I feel pleasantly comfortable with him."

Yes, with a level head and a heart always under control, a girl with a bit of luck could get along very nicely in the world. It certainly was beginning to look that way. . . .

It appeared there was a wide space for dancing, too, in this flowery place and Mary's eyes fell to following a smart-looking young couple who were dancing in lazy relaxation to a loitering melody. The girl was a slim, boyish creature with shingled hair and tanned face and arms; her partner was tall and slim, sunburned, with wiry muscles, yet almost insolently languid. His features were regular and his head handsomely shaped.

"What made you say a thing like that?" Mary asked him quickly. She was interested in the coldly antagonistic stare that Landers leveled at the young man. In it was something of impersonal jealousy.

"That lad was born to the purple—and the girl, too," Landers said. "They've both been in the big money from the beginning. You can tell that by looking at them. He'd probably be glad to play around with a working girl like you on the quiet, but his own tribe would freeze you to death. You'd always be an outsider with that gang. And that's not saying anything against you, Mary, either."

Mary gave a careless shrug. "I can't get excited over something that is not likely to happen."

What could it possibly matter to her if a rich young man's friends were snobbish? But she was clever enough to see the implication of Buck Landers. He was building himself up, not subtly.

She began to notice other diners. A middle-aged couple, both complacently enjoying their surroundings and each other. People from out of town, probably. Somehow they lacked the New York look. And, at another table, a paunchy man with a youngish woman in cerise chiffon. A ring on the girl's left hand indicated marriage. Looked like a case of an old man's darling. . . .

"I can read your thoughts like an open book," Landers said unexpectedly. "You want me to tell you what you're thinking?"

"I'm not thinking anything at all—I'm just enjoying myself," she returned with a smile, humor in her blue eyes.

"You're enjoying yourself and feeling mighty secure behind that stone wall you've thrown up around yourself," he declared. "You're thinking that I ought to be held in check, and you're perfectly sure that you can do it. You have a hunch that I like you a lot, but you've made up your mind that I'm not going to get to first base. How about it—have I lined things up right?"

"Maybe yes, maybe no." Her voice was steady, yet her cheeks felt feverish of a sudden.

"I know how to deal with men, but women, generally, have me up a tree," he went on. "Men usually obey my wishes for what they can get out of me—in a business way. That part's O. K. Maybe it's the same way with women, but I'm wondering if it wouldn't be possible for you to like me a little bit—just for myself."

She drew a long breath and steeled herself to stop him before he got fairly started. It would be easier now than later.

"I know perfectly well what you're driving at, Mr. Landers. I'll tell you frankly how I feel about you. I think you are awfully nice and awfully interesting, but let's not try to be too friendly. I don't feel that way towards you and we'd both be wasting our time."

She smiled at him with the kindest possible eyes. "Now are you mad at me?"

"I've been up against tough propositions before," he remarked, with a slow smile.

"As long as it is just plain friendship, I think it would be a lot of fun," Mary elaborated. "Of course, you haven't suggested anything more, but I can read minds, too, Mr. Landers. It wouldn't be long, unless we had an understanding, before there'd possibly be a question of—well, affection. That's the part I want to dodge."

He smiled at her.

"Well, little lady, you certainly come out in the middle of the ring and start slugging at the tap of the bell. You almost scored a knockout in the first round. Yes, sir, you almost stopped me dead in my tracks. I'd take you at your word and agree to let it stay a case of plain friendship, except for one thing. Shall I tell you?"

"Yes."

"Plain friendship with you isn't going to satisfy me. You've been frank and honest with me, so I'm going to return the compliment. I think you're great. I think you're the greatest girl I've ever met in my life and I've met a lot of 'em. You're got everything—looks, sense, and you're square. I'm through playing the field. That's my personal angle. There's a slant to all this concerning you that I don't believe you've thoroughly realized. Do you know what I could do for you?"

"But I don't want you to do anything for me, more than you've done already," Mary said almost imploringly.

"I could put you in right so strong that all your troubles would be over forever," he told her solidly. "There's nothing in New York you couldn't have, because I'm able to get it for you. I'm a straight shooter. It's never been my policy to lie or stall in my life, and what I tell you you can depend on it. If you can take a liking to me, I'm willing to play absolutely fair with you. All other women are out. All you have to do is say the word. You're fixed for life."

Mary's blood began to run with a chill current and her hands suddenly were icy cold.

"Do you mean you want to marry me?"

His eyes were stone steady. "It might not be a bad idea. Maybe I would be better off married. I'm going to think it over. . . ."

Mary did not answer him, but she told herself, "I could never love him. If I was sure I'd never love anybody else, I'd consider it."

Landers took Mary home in the kind of limousine that represented all her dreams of luxury; lengthy and lustrous, its engine purred like a kitten. The chauffeur was smartly military. After dinner she had declined an invitation to dance. But the proposal of marriage from Landers had rather upset the casual tempo of the evening. She had not replied to his offer. It was evident he expected no immediate answer and their conversation veered away from the topic. Both of them knew that enough, for one evening, had been said.

The car stopped before Mary's rooming house and Landers accompanied her to the door. She gave him her hand briefly in parting.

"Am I going to see you any more?" he asked almost indifferent.

"Why not?"

"I'll leave it to you," he returned. "Think it over and we'll have another talk whenever you like. There's no particular hurry. If you haven't your answer ready we can go to dinner, and I'll try to show you a reasonably good time."

"Thank you so much," she said, and disappeared into the house.
